Some very damaging testimony has been introduced in the Breckinridge-Pollard scandal in the taking of recent depositions at Danville, Ky. The latest developments appear to put the matter in a very different light.

THE sensational story that sister Mary Ellen Lease was a member of Hugh de Payen commandery, Knights Templar, of Topeka, has promptly been denied by Eminent Commander A. D. With the gallant Mary in full membership she would have either organized an insurrection in six months, or been at the head of the order.

In two or three weeks it will be a years since Mr. Cleveland was inaugurated. When that event occurred the country was prosperous and we all had money to throw at the birds, and now the majority of us are in the same old boat with that estimable old lady, Mother Hubbard, whose sufferings under a democratic administration have been embalmed in enduring song. The only thing that we can do is to wait with as much fortitude as we can muster for 1896 and the chance to elect a good republican.—Beatrice Express.

They claim that from the

It is an evident fact that whenever you hear a man howl be is hit, and hard too. You have no doubt read the papers the past week and by the language used you can readily see that some of our would-be (if they could) competitors are very sore. What is the reason? Trade is not coming their way as fast as they like it, and they think to force it by opening war on us. We, as a rule, pay no attention to such slush. It is a good advertisement for us and it costs us nothing. But we must let our voice be heard that you may know that we are still living. We wish to say that we do not have to go out on the street and take a man by the collar and pull him into our store as we know some have done. We do not have to resort to this means to get custom. The people know where they get bargains and who their friends are and come to us. Look here, did you ever hear tell of the like, that because an article was sold at suction at a sacrifice that it was not as good as if it had cost the regular wholesale price? Nonsense. The people are not all crazy. Such slush puts us very much in mind of a little dog running out at a big dog and howling and barking and prancing around, making all the noise, but look when it comes down to business; where is your little dog? He ain't in it. That's the way with our competitor, h-e a-i-n-t i-n i-t. Then again, note he signs his name and adds "wrecker of high prices." Now, who is the wrecker of high prices? Is it not a fact that when we came to town two years ago last August we knocked the bottom out of prices, and have kept on slashing them ever since, hence our success. The idea of a little one-horse shebang striking the town some two years later and after a few weeks making a big fuss and hurrah and claiming all the glory and honor of being the leading and only one that put the prices down.

We are here, and here to stay, and the people know that they run no risk in buying an article of us, as our would-be competitor would have you believe that you do, but should an article prove not worth the value paid for it, we make it right. Now about the auction. We do buy goods at auction when it is a nice clean stock, and lots of them, too, and are proud to acknowledge it, for this and this alone is the reason that we can undersell all. This is what hurts our competitors, but it is what makes the consumers happy. So this is why the competitors are down on us and the reason the consumers are with us. And this is what we like, as it is the consumers we are trying to please.

Some weeks ago you no doubt read of the failure of the James H. Walker wholesale house, one of the largest in the world. On the 7th of this month $650,000 worth of dry goods was put on sale to be sold to the highest bidder. Our buyer is there, has been there all the time, picking up bargains. They will be put on sale in this city. Now won't these goods be all right, or are they not good because they were bought at auction? Watch us, call on us, trade with us. We will make it an object
